Joslyn Art Museum Welcoming Reception MPLA/NLA/NEMA & WCHLIST 2000 Tri-Conference Update

Wednesday, October 25, 2000

Conference goers will not want to miss the opportunity to visit the Joslyn Art Museum, site of the Wednesday night reception. The event will give attendees a beautiful space in which to reconnect with friends and colleagues, meet new ones and re-energize after a long trip to Omaha. Savor some hors d'oeuvres, experience a little attitudinal adjustment with a glass of wine and enjoy a feast for the eyes. The galleries will be open for viewing, and music will be provided by Duggan & Doyle, an original acoustic music duo.

The Joslyn Art Museum is a stunning building in its own right, listed as one of the 100 "finest buildings in the United States" in 1938. It was built with 38 types of marble from around the world. Native American motifs can be seen in the columns and throughout the interior. Other parts of the building pay tribute to the theme of the European settler. In the Italian Renaissance Storz Fountain Court, a favorite Omaha spot for receptions, look for Moravian floor tiles that imbed the symbols for literature, music, architecture and painting. While you're at it, throw a penny into the fountain and make a wish.

In 1994 the 58,000 square-foot Scott Pavilion was added to the original building. Its new glass atrium and gallery space make heavy use of natural materials such as slate and wood to great effect. A recent acquisition of a 15,000 pound Chihuly glass sculpture, prominently displayed in the window on the second floor of the atrium, is worth the visit alone.

MPLA Awards Challenge!

—Jean Hatfield MPLA Awards Chair

I know, this is the time of year when we all get a little brain dead. Academic and school librarians are starting to breathe sighs of relief as they finish up those end of school year tasks and public librarians are cleaning up the tax forms and reshelving all the misplaced reference books that helpful students have put away. Children's librarians are looking at their summer calendars and wondering how they will ever survive another summer. And all of us as family members are going to weddings, graduations, recitals, sports events, etc.

But while you are doing all of those wonderful things that we call "life" it might be nice to take a few minutes to think about people that you think are special in our profession. People who've done an outstanding job in their field, who supported our profession or who are "on the road to success!"

And when you think of those special people, take a look at the MPLA web page http://www.usd.edu/mpla/committees/awards/awardsform.html to see if they might qualify for an MPLA award. What about "distinguished service", "beginning professional" or "legislative leadership"?

Is there a news organization in your community that should be rewarded for faithful and accurate reporting? Or an author that has painted a magnificent picture with words of life in the mountain plains area that should be honored with a literary contribution award? Or an exhibitor that you've noticed has been there for MPLA time after time?

OK - I already said I know you are busy - but it only takes a few minutes to fill out a form and send it in. And think of the pleasure it will give when the award is announced!

So you have until July 31 to get the nomination in to me. Take a few minutes out of your busy schedule to do something that will make you feel good and will recognize the good in others as well!

The information is a critical part of the 21st Century Library Needs Assessment. The needs assessment, in turn, will help Utah libraries and their local governments cope with the unprecedented demand on aging facilities. It will be followed by a discussion within the Utah library community about possible mechanisms, private funding, and legislation that could provide incentives or otherwise help local governments that want to improve or build library facilities.

MPLA/NLA/NEMA 2000 Tri-Conference Convention After-Hours

Touring Omaha's Old Market

The Old Market is one of Omaha's main attractions for tourists, but it is also a gathering spot for locals. Originally the city's produce market, it has been painstakingly preserved for decades by the Mercer family to maintain the look and feel of the market that few Omahans remember. The market has undergone significant but controlled commercial growth, and now hosts a variety of ethnic restaurants, bookstores, cafes and shops. Howard Street between 10th and 13th Streets is the center of the Old Market. You'll have to return during the summer if you want to see the farmer's market in full swing on Saturday mornings.

To demonstrate the variety of restaurants we have included a selective list of great little spots worth a visit in the Old Market. Walk slowly in order to find all the Market's many surprises. Stroll into the establishments. If you just stay outside, you'll miss half of the experience. Of course there is a whole lot more to Omaha than just visiting the Old Market, but it's not to be missed.

Also consult the convention web site under

"Omaha" for more information about things to do in Omaha. (http://reinert.creighton.edu/triconf/). The web site also lists the results of a poll taken of area librarians to discover their favorite places all over the city. We thought that if they liked them, you were bound to like them too. There will also be restaurant guides available at the convention hotel in October.

Selections located in the Old Market:

* Voted a favorite by Omaha area librarians.

$ most entrees under $8, $$ majority of entrees $8 - $20, $$$ entrees over $20

13th Street Coffee Company, 519 South 13th St., is a real favorite among the younger set. It's a Seattle style espresso bar where you can enjoy great coffee, café latte, bagels, muffins and "killer desserts" in a friendly, smoke-free environment.

MJ Java, 1299 Farnam St., roasts its own beans that are imported from all the major coffee bean growing countries. Even non-coffee drinkers will enjoy the aroma of the shop.

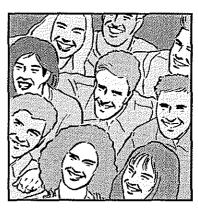

Ahmad's, 1006 Howard St., features an interesting Persian menu in a small, intimate dining room. Plates are attractively presented. $$

Alt Munchen, 414 South 10th St., is a new authentic German beer hall where the emphasis is more on the great German beer than the food, but brats, schnitzel, and German pretzels are all available. Much of the seating is traditional beer hall style with long tables. Say "hi" to Matt, the proud owner. $

Emporia State University SLIM Alumni Reunion

An Invitation for Alumni of Emporia State University School of Library and Information Management

The Class of 1970, Emporia State University School of Library and Information Management (SLIM), is organizing a very special alumni reunion to be held at the American Library Association Annual Conference in Chicago, Sunday, July 9, 2000, from 5 to 7 p.m. They invite all alumni of the school to the reunion and challenge all other classes to see which year can have the greatest number of alumni in attendance.

MPLA President Marilyn Hinshaw, class member and reunion committee chairperson, sees the event as a celebration of alumni successes over the nearly 100 years of the school's history. It will also serve as a call to help make the next 100 years just as successful. "A lot has changed about our school over the years, but we still have the oldest tradition of any library school in the western half of the country and we can always be proud alumni of one of the most dynamic and visionary library schools anywhere." The School of Library and Information Management will celebrate its Centennial in 2002 and the Class of 1970 wants to use its 30th year reunion as a way to generate awareness of and participation in the SLIM Centennial Celebration.

A web site for the event is at http://slim.emporia.edu/alumni/millennium.htm. Alumni can submit photographs, memories, current information, and see who has signed up to attend the reunion.

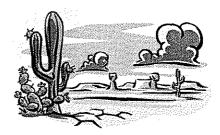

The reunion will be held at the Executive Plaza Hotel, 71 East Wacker, in downtown Chicago, from 5 to 7 p.m. Reservations must be made by July 1. There is a charge of $30 per person.

Please RSVP to Anita Woods, Campus Box 4025, Emporia, KS 66801 or 1-800-552-4770.

- The new American Fork Public Library is nearing completion and the staff is preparing to move in. A "Books Brigade" is being organized to move books. Director Christie Reimschussel is looking to an official opening around mid-April. It takes time to understand how to run a new building; there will be a long punch list of loose end building items, and the inevitable glitches to work out. In the end, however, library users in American Fork should be pleased by the new facility available to them.
- Grand County Library in Moab, Utah had a dream come true recently. Funding is naturally difficult to come by for all associations, as well as in Moab. A $10,000 anonymous donation to the library made this problem slightly smaller. A Florida woman gave the money to the library to use as they wished; no strings attached. The generous donator's family lives in Moab and members are avid library users. Apparently the hard work of librarians does get noticed and rewarded. Library director, Sonja Plummer, hopes the money will be used towards the costs of renovation of a new library building. This donation sets a good example, builds confidence, and may provide incentives for other private donors.

Wichita State University has developed a library media program that is scheduled to begin this summer. According to Dennis Kear, Chair of Curriculum & Instruction
Department, "The program addresses the Kansas State Department of Education's standards for certifying individuals as library media specialists."

The program grew out of Wichita State University's collaboration with Emporia State University, Pittsburgh State University and Fort Hays State University's efforts to offer library media courses in the Wichita area. Richard Soash, Technology Coordinator for USD 268, Cheney Public Schools and USD 259, Wichita Public Schools, helped facilitate the program's development.

"The 30 credit hour endorsement program includes a course in children's literature and one in adolescent literature. It will lead to K-12 endorsement in the library media," said Kear. "The Summer 2000 schedule includes Introduction to School Librarianship, July 2000 and Children's Literature for those students who have not completed a children's literature course."

If you are interested in the program contact Dennis Kear, Chair of Curriculum & Instruction Department at Wichita State University, 316-978-6921 or email kear@twsu.edu

• Hundreds of records, photographs, and artifacts documenting the military's use of the Papago Park Military Reservation are now in the Arizona State Archives. At a reception March 1, Papago Trackers President Don Prior transferred six boxes of the organization's files to the Arizona History and Archives Division of DLAPR.

The collection includes personnel records of both civilian and military staff who worked at the prisoner-of-war camp there during the World War II. It also has records of the Germans who were imprisoned there, and extensive correspondence with Jurgen Wattenberg, the U-boat commander who led the famous tunnel escape from the camp in December 1944. Material on the stay there of the U.S. Army's 364th Infantry Regiment at the outbreak of WWII and the first Pheonix area Veteran's Administration Hospital, which was established there after the war, are also in the collection.

Papago Trackers was founded in 1985 to gather information about the base and its history. It has hosted visits by former POWs who were interned there. The collection donated to the State Archives represents more than 15,000 person-hours spent by Trackers gathering, classifying and organizing the material.

"This is an exceptionally unique collection of material," said Deputy State Archivist Melanie Sturgeon. "We are grateful to the Trackers for the generosity. We invite people to monitor our web page, www.dlapr.lib.az.us/archives, to see when the material will be ready for public use.".
