From the Desk of the President

In this issue of our newsletter is a call from our nominating committee for folks to step up and run for Vice-President of MPLA. As someone who did that, then served as Vice-President and is now serving as President (and is looking forward to serving as Past President!), I thought I'd share some of my thoughts on the position with you all. Serving as the President of MPLA has been incredibly rewarding for me both personally (I got to meet so many wonderful folks) and professionally (I've picked up skills in meeting management, consensus building, crisis action, and more). I've put all of my organizational and project management skills to use and enjoyed working with others to help this organization take a step or two forward and prepare for the future of libraries under my watch. I have found it to be work – certainly – but rewarding and fulfilling work that left me feeling good about the organization itself as we finished each project and moved on to the next. The next few years will be (hopefully) less intense as we have our new software to manage the association and we have folks on staff who are dedicated and talented and are hopefully going to stick around for a while! All of this has happened because I responded to the nominating committee's call to serve! I would like to add my voice to those of the nominating committee in asking you all to consider serving in this position yourselves. While the work is real, the rewards are outsized!!

Librarian Spotlight – Nathan Sonnenschein

User Services & Experience Librarian @ Montana State University
Billings in Billings, Montana
Originally from Casper, Wyoming
MPLA member for 2 years

What inspired you to pursue a career as a librarian, and what continues to fuel your passion for this work?

A career as a librarian never crossed my mind until college, when I first met academic librarians and observed their work. (I attended Central Wyoming College from 2014 to 2016, then the University of Wyoming from 2018 to 2019.) I was struck by the diversity of skills required: customer service, technological know-how, problem-solving, teaching. And, I was inspired by the genuine care many academic librarians have for students. Working as a student employee, I met several wonderful mentors who gave me far more support than I had received in my academic programs, and they encouraged me to pursue this career path.

What's one misconception people often have about librarians?

That we all are bookworms! I like books just as much as anyone else, but I am a slow reader and a busy person, so I only finish about one book a month. Does this impact the quality of my work? Not at all! Customer service expertise, technological know-how, and communication skills can all be developed without literary expertise.

Librarian Spotlight – Nathan Sonnenschein

What skills do you think are most essential for someone in your position?

In my opinion, the ability to approach problem-solving with an open mind is absolutely vital. As librarians, we are the people trusted to help students when they encounter barriers in their research, or when other staff need assistance with issues above and beyond their regular responsibilities. As such, being a determined and cheerful problem-solving partner goes a long way toward developing the positive relationships that libraries thrive upon.

What advice would you give to someone considering a career in librarianship?

Librarianship does not require expertise in English or History. There are already more than enough librarians from those backgrounds. Experience in other areas, like the sciences, will make you stand out from the crowd because of your unique skills.

How has your MPLA membership been valuable to you?

Serving on the MPLA Membership Committee has helped me become more aware of what libraries are facing in other states, and I have met folks working in all corners of the library profession!

Do you have a favorite book or collection that you've encountered in your work?

I stumbled on a worn-out hardcover of John Berger's "Ways of Seeing" while weeding art books. I thought it looked interesting, yet short and accessible, so I read it during my lunch breaks. Even since, I have approached art through a much more critical lens.

Sequoyah Book Award

With the Oklahoma Library Association's Sequoyah Book Award, Oklahoma honors the Native American leader Sequoyah for his unique achievement in creating the Cherokee syllabary. Sequoyah chose eighty-five symbols to represent all spoken sounds of the Cherokee language. In so doing, he created a way to preserve his people's language and culture. Books considered for the Sequoyah Masterlists must be written by an author living in the United States, published three years prior to the award date, and have received at least one positive review.

Human Creativity in the Age of A.I.

As we move further into the land of automation and artificial intelligence, how can a library support skill development, foster creativity, and promote copyright protections? Can A.I. enhance our creativity or cause it to atrophy? Who owns the output: person, program, or third party?

Join the Oklahoma Library Association's University and College Division on Tuesday, May 20 from 10a-4:30p Central, for the learning module "Human Creativity in the Age of A.I." to help librarians and library staff explore solutions and answers to these questions.

Calling all public library trustees and administrators that work closely with them for a research study.

Public Library trustees generally hold enormous decision-making power over policies, hiring directors, and budgets. Yet we know almost nothing about who they are, what they value, how they make decisions, are trained, or how well the trustee-administrator relationship functions. The last substantive national study of them occurred in 1973! The Trustee Project is a 3-year research project exploring all these issues and more, sponsored by the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

We are looking for any trustee, former or current, or library administrator who works closely with trustees to participate in a 30-minute survey—with an opportunity to participate further.

Leadership Institute

Scholarship Winners

The Past Presidents' Advisory Council of the Mountain Plains Library Association (MPLA) is pleased to announce that Shay Beezley and Conrrado Saldivar are the inaugural recipients of the Past Presidents' Scholarship, which provides $1,000 toward the cost of attending the MPLA Leadership Institute.

The 2025 Leadership Institute fellows are an impressive group, so the scholarship committee focused on fellows who are MPLA members and plan to contribute to or seek leadership positions within MPLA in the future. Shay Beezley and Conrrado Saldivar exemplify these traits, but it was not easy to select just two individuals from such a strong cohort.

Conrrado Saldivar is the Tech Services Manager at the Natrona County Library in Casper, Wyoming, and serves as Guest Faculty at the University of Washington iSchool. Conrrado is a past president of the Wyoming Library Association, and led the Association through a period marked by adverse legislation and censorship attempts. He has been an MPLA member since 2020.

Shay Beezley is Assistant Director of Metadata & Cataloging at the Chambers Library at University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond. Shay is the creator of the Metadata Justice in Oklahoma Libraries & Archives Symposium, and is an active contributor and recently elected President of the Oklahoma Library Association with her President-elect term starting in July. She is also the current chair of MPLA's Communications and Professional Development Committees.
